- Assessment of the 2020 report: discussion on questions from background document:
  - What is your evaluation of the 2020 report? Did you find the combination of historical narrative, statistical trends and current key information to be interesting and effective?
  - Considering the differences between the 2018 and 2020 editions of the report, are there any lessons that you think should be considered in planning the 2024 edition?

11.15h Break

11.30h Imagining the 2024 Report – brainstorming based on questions from the background document...

- Would it be preferable to produce one comprehensive report, or several self-contained reports organised thematically? (e.g. Fundamental Values, Key Commitments, Learning and Teaching, Social Dimension, Internationalisation)
  - Should the report include both quantitative and qualitative data?

- What level of detail would be optimal?
- What length should the report(s) be?
- What should be the role of other WGs and the cooperation with them? (e.g. what input would WG1 appreciate from the other WGs with regard to indicators for the Implementation Report?)
- Should the report aim to focus on the most telling "key" indicators to capture progress in implementing agreed commitments – or rather produce a broad range of indicators on each topic?
- How much time investment can be expected from providers of information (e.g. BFUG members?)
- Who should be involved in drafting the report?
